SET-1.Q.(01 - 05)

In contemporary cities, public spaces are increasingly curated as zones of consumption rather than participation. Parks, plazas, and even sidewalks are redesigned to favor commercial aesthetics over communal engagement. Benches are replaced with branded kiosks, and open areas become sites for controlled leisure. This transformation signals not mere urban evolution but a (1) _____ shift in how collectivity is imagined. Citizenship, once enacted through shared spaces, is now mediated by transactional encounters. The architecture of inclusion has given way to the infrastructure of surveillance, where access is contingent on purchase and behavior is continuously monitored. The public realm, in this sense, becomes an algorithmic frontier—its openness filtered through predictive analytics. Here, design serves not freedom but compliance, sculpting movement and interaction through invisible boundaries of data. What was once civic has become (2) _____: a landscape choreographed by capital and coded authority.

This spatial economy thrives on the illusion of choice. Visitors believe they roam freely, yet their paths are (3) _____ by unseen architectures of control—cameras, sensors, and behavioral scripts. The result is a paradoxical urbanism: participation through permission, freedom through framing. The democratic ideal of the city thus demands rethinking. To reclaim its publicness is to resist its commodification—to reimagine the plaza not as marketplace, but as (4) _____ for dissent, dialogue, and encounter. Only then can space resume its ethical function: to host difference without domination, and movement without (5) _____.

SET-2.Q.(06 - 10)

Urban wilderness, often dismissed as peripheral or accidental, constitutes a lexicon of latent ecologies. Overgrown lots, cracked pavements, and neglected waterways do not merely represent neglect; they inscribe a narrative of persistence, encoding resilience as (6) _____. These vegetative anomalies challenge the prescriptive order of urban planning, proposing instead an indeterminate rhythm that is both anarchic and generative. The wild, in this framing, is not chaos, but a dense articulation of ecological syntax. Its language manifests through tangled vines and fractured asphalt, resisting the hegemony of manicured parks. To present such wilderness as merely picturesque is to engage in epistemic (7) _____—turning survival and resilience into superficial display. What is celebrated as renewal often entails displacement, where biodiversity is sacrificed to recreational imaginaries and "green infrastructure" becomes a euphemism for controlled intervention. To perceive these spaces critically is to cultivate (8) _____—an attentiveness to life that thrives beyond human calculation. These terrains demand interpretive patience, where fallen trees and seasonal wetlands become loci of inquiry and wonder. Yet wilderness defies containment. It is not mere landscape, but ontological surplus—a presence that eludes categorization. Policy cannot domesticate it; architecture cannot tame it. It persists, liminal and instructive, as a (9) _____ grammar inscribed upon urban peripheries. The city's wilds are not neglected. They are semiotic punctuations—interruptions in the metropolitan narrative that insist on recognition not as absence, but as ecological (10) _____.

SET-3.Q.(11 - 15)

The modern conception of identity is often predicated on a notion of an authentic, stable self—a core essence that can be discovered. However, this perspective is increasingly challenged by post-structuralist thought, which posits that identity is not a pre-existing entity but a continuous (11) _____. According to this view, the "self" is not found but is actively constructed through language, social interactions, and cultural narratives. We are constantly being shaped by the discourses that surround us, which provide the templates and categories through which we understand our own existence. Consequently, identity is inherently (12) ____; it is fluid, fragmented, and often contradictory, rather than unified and coherent. This does not imply that we lack agency, but that our agency operates within a pre-existing symbolic framework that we did not create. The attempt to (13) _____ a single, fixed identity is thus seen as a futile and even oppressive endeavor, one that ignores the multiplicity of our subject positions. To truly understand the self is to embrace its (14) _____ and to recognize that who we are is perpetually in a state of becoming, a dynamic intersection of forces rather than a static point of origin. SET-4.Q.(16 - 20)

The relentless (16) _____ of creativity in the digital age has transformed artistic expression into a ceaseless performance of marketable authenticity. What was once the domain of idiosyncratic vision is now subjected to the relentless logic of algorithmic curation, where novelty is less an aesthetic breakthrough than a data point to be optimized. The patina of "disruption" masks a deeply (17)____ impulse, compelling artists to adopt the vernacular of entrepreneurship. They are no longer just creators but "content producers," their output measured in engagement metrics that (18)____ genuine connection with quantifiable interaction. This process engenders a peculiar ontological anxiety, as the self becomes a brand to be perpetually managed and monetized. In this landscape, vulnerability is not so much shared as it is (19)____, packaged for consumption in a way that neutralizes its political edge. The result is a cultural terrain that feels both infinitely vast and strangely monotonous, a testament to the insidious power of platform capitalism. To reclaim art from this cycle of commodification requires a deliberate resistance to the allure of visibility and a return to the messy, unquantifiable work of making meaning—a task that stands in stark (20)____ to the frictionless production of content.

SET-5.Q.(21 - 25)

Official history is rarely a passive record of the past; it is an active construction, a narrative shaped by the gravitational pull of power. What is presented as a collective memory often (21)____ inconvenient truths and dissenting voices to forge a story of national unity. This curated past is not merely written in textbooks; it is given a physical (22)____ in monuments, memorials, and state-sponsored ceremonies. These are the anchors of official memory, designed to make a particular version of history feel permanent and beyond question. They create a seamless, heroic timeline that often papers over the (23)____ fractures of conflict, exploitation, and internal dissent. Counter-histories, however, persist in the margins—in folk songs, private letters, and community archives. For a more honest reckoning with the past to occur, these silenced narratives must be actively (24)____ and brought into the mainstream discourse. Until this happens, any official gesture of remembrance risks becoming a hollow act of (25)____, designed to manage public perception rather than to achieve genuine justice.

SET-6.Q.(26 - 30)

Writing history is not simply about recording facts; it is about shaping the past within a chosen framework that both reveals and hides. Every archive, no matter how detailed, is marked by what it leaves out—by the silences that give it authority. Memory, therefore, is not a fixed storehouse but a shifting negotiation between remembering and forgetting. What seems factual often mirrors power itself—an inscription that (26)____ continuity where disruption once existed.

The historian's role is not to find pure origins but to question how those origins were constructed—to see how beginnings are invented through repetition. Meaning, too, is not found but (27)____, emerging through a delicate dance of reference and reinterpretation. The archive may preserve, but it also limits; it defines what counts as truth.

Yet truth is neither singular nor permanent—it is a layered structure, a palimpsest of partial revelations. What we inherit, then, is not certainty but (28)____—the traces of what could not be said, the faint shadows of meanings unformed. By recognising these silences, we begin to imagine another kind of history, one that values incompleteness and listens as much to silence as to speech.

Such a history remains open and alive at its boundaries, refusing closure. For only in incompleteness can the past continue to (29)____, resisting total explanation and inviting new engagement. In that pause between knowing and not knowing, history becomes not a record of what was, but a (30)____ of what might still be.

SET-7.Q.(31 - 35)

In contemporary debates on digital governance, the rhetoric of "open data" is often lauded as a panacea for transparency and accountability. Yet, beneath this veneer of democratization lies a series of normative assumptions that privilege certain epistemologies over others. Platforms designed in the Global North, for instance, assume a universal literacy in algorithmic reasoning, effectively marginalizing alternative modes of knowledge production rooted in local contexts. This digital (31)____ reinforces asymmetries in civic participation, where access does not equate to agency. Moreover, regulatory frameworks frequently treat data as a neutral commodity, obscuring its embedded (32)____ within historical patterns of power and surveillance. Consequently, communities are nudged towards "compliance" under the guise of empowerment, fostering a culture of performative engagement rather than substantive deliberation. The proliferation of dashboards, rankings, and metrics cultivates an ethos of (33)____, where symbolic gestures of openness replace genuine structural reform. Civil society actors are invited into policy consultations, yet their contributions are filtered through bureaucratic (34)____, ensuring that institutional prerogatives remain unchallenged. Ultimately, without interrogating the ontologies that shape digital governance, the promise of participatory innovation risks becoming mere (35)____, impressive in design but hollow in impact.

SET-8.Q.(36 - 40)

To articulate subjectivity outside the parameters of modern rationality is to engage in a form of epistemic insurgency—an attempt to (36)_____the archive of thought that has long dictated who can speak, know, and be known. Within this intellectual economy, knowledge functions less as illumination and more as a technique of capture, binding bodies to grids of intelligibility. The university, as both a disciplinary and affective apparatus, perpetuates this capture by codifying dissent into legible critique, thereby neutralizing its subversive potential. The scholar's task, therefore, is not to seek entry into this canon but to perform an (37) _____of its internal architecture—to expose how its grammar of universality is built upon exclusion and erasure. What is often called "truth" is merely the sediment of power's reiterations, a rhetorical stability achieved through repetition and consent. Liberation, then, cannot arise from accumulation of knowledge but from its strategic (38)_____, a refusal to reproduce epistemic norms that domesticate difference. This gesture demands a reorientation of thought itself—toward opacity, silence, and the undecidable. Only then can we begin to imagine a politics of knowing that does not rely on mastery but on (39)_____—an ethics that acknowledges the unknowable as constitutive of the human. In this sense, the future of theory lies not in progress but in (40)_____—a recursive undoing of thought's imperial trajectory.

Human creativity, though often romanticised as a sudden spark of brilliance, is more accurately the result of deliberate mental engagement. Innovative ideas frequently emerge when individuals (41)_____diverse experiences, allowing unrelated concepts to intersect in unexpected ways. This cross-pollination of thoughts becomes even more powerful when paired with moments of strategic rest; studies show that the mind continues to process information subconsciously even when one is not actively focused. Yet the journey towards meaningful creativity is rarely linear. Many breakthroughs follow repeated failures, which serve not as endpoints but as crucial feedback loops. This is why resilient thinkers view setbacks as opportunities to (42)_____ their methods rather than abandon them. Collaboration, too, plays a pivotal role. When people exchange perspectives, they often uncover assumptions that would have otherwise remained hidden. Such dialogue can (43)_____rigid thinking patterns and open pathways to original solutions. However, true creativity requires more than just novel ideas—it demands disciplined refinement. Without structure, even the most promising concept risks becoming (44)_____and losing its potential impact. Ultimately, creativity thrives at the intersection of curiosity, persistence, and thoughtful (45) iteration, elements that collectively sustain the tenacity needed for long-term innovation.

Personal discipline is often misunderstood as a rigid set of rules, but in practice, it is a flexible system that helps individuals (46)_____ their behaviour toward meaningful objectives. Unlike external enforcement, discipline grows strongest when driven by intrinsic motivation. People who manage their time intentionally often find that even small routines can produce significant change over extended periods. However, many struggle because they view discipline as punishment rather than a strategic tool. This misunderstanding prevents them from recognising its deeper value. True discipline is closely linked to the habit of deliberate reflection, a practice that allows one to assess choices without harsh judgment. Such reflection helps cultivate a sense of (47)_____poise, especially in moments of uncertainty. When individuals learn to pause and observe their impulses, they gain clarity rather than reacting impulsively. Yet reflection alone is insufficient; it must be paired with purposeful action. Without consistent effort, even the most insightful intentions can (48)_____ into inactivity. Moreover, the long-term process of self-regulation requires emotional steadiness. This is where sustained (49)_____fortitude becomes indispensable, enabling individuals to remain committed despite obstacles. Ultimately, discipline is less about restriction and more about intentional alignment with one's values, achieved through repeated choices that (50) _____ personal growth.

SET-11.Q.(51 - 55)

Modern attention has become a fragile currency, scattered across endless notifications and competing demands. To regain a sense of inward steadiness, one must first recognise that focus is not a sudden achievement but a gradual discipline. It is (51)_____ through deliberate pauses, through the willingness to step back from constant stimulation. True attention is less about tightening one's grip and more about noticing what truly deserves to be held.

In a culture that rewards speed, slowness is often dismissed as inefficiency, yet slowness is the very soil in which depth grows. Without intervals of quiet, the mind becomes a surface skim, unable to draw meaning from its own patterns. To cultivate sustained attention, individuals must learn to create spaces free from interruption, spaces in which thought can wander without being instantly (52)_____.

The challenge is not merely to avoid distraction but to understand why distraction feels so seductive. It offers effortless escape from complexity. But genuine engagement requires a willingness to remain in the discomfort of uncertainty. Focus strengthens when we practise returning again and again to the task at hand, where each return becomes a silent act of (53)_____.

Over time, attention reveals its own architecture. It teaches that clarity emerges not from force but from consistency. It teaches, too, that the mind cannot be endlessly stretched without consequence; it needs rest just as much as effort. To reclaim our capacity for deep noticing, we must replace the habit of constant reaction with the habit of (54)_____. Only then does perception regain its depth, and thought its quiet authority.

Ultimately, attention is not a resource to be squeezed dry but a relationship to be honoured. And like any meaningful relationship, it flourishes when we protect it from the noise that seeks to (55)_____ it.

SET-12.Q.(56 - 60)

Economic stability is often described through charts and targets, yet its foundations reach far deeper than numerical summaries. A nation's economy depends not only on policies and production but also on the confidence held by households and firms. When people believe conditions are favourable, they are more likely to spend, invest, and innovate. Such confidence cannot be (56)_____ through declarations alone; it grows through consistent governance and transparent communication.

Periods of uncertainty reveal how quickly expectations shape behaviour. Even minor doubts can alter consumption and investment decisions. Economists refer to this as the "expectations effect," noting that markets react as strongly to perception as they do to measurable data. When expectations turn pessimistic, caution may (57)_____ growth long before official indicators reflect the shift.

Public policy therefore carries a psychological dimension. Reforms must not only be effective but must also inspire trust. Policies that appear inconsistent or disconnected from daily realities breed scepticism. In contrast, clarity and steady execution help create a sense of direction that (58)_____ economic resilience.

Another challenge lies in balancing immediate needs with long-term goals. Measures aimed at short-term stability can sometimes compete with investments required for future development. Without careful balance, economies risk becoming reactive, thereby (59)_____ their capacity to adapt to changing global circumstances.

Ultimately, stability does not mean the absence of volatility but the strength to withstand it. When institutions function reliably and trust is nurtured, societies can face uncertainty with greater confidence, transforming temporary disruptions into opportunities for renewed (60)_____.

Astronomy reminds us that humanity occupies only a small corner of an immense cosmic landscape. For centuries, observers have studied the night sky to understand not merely its beauty but the forces that govern celestial motion. Knowledge of the universe advances when evidence replaces speculation and when observations are (61)_____ with disciplined curiosity rather than hurried assumptions.

One of the most profound shifts in astronomical thinking came with the recognition that the universe is not static. Galaxies drift apart, stars evolve, and cosmic structures continually transform. Such discoveries emerge slowly, shaped by measurements so delicate that even minor errors can (62)_____ an entire model.

Astronomers also rely on patterns of light to infer distant realities. A star's temperature, age, and composition can be examined through its spectrum, offering clues that human senses alone could never detect. This method demonstrates how scientific insight often comes from interpreting signals that are easily (63)_____ without careful study.

In recent years, the search for planets beyond our solar system has expanded rapidly. These worlds, orbiting faraway stars, challenge long-held ideas about where life might arise. Their discovery urges researchers to refine their techniques and confront the possibility that familiar conditions may not be the only environments that (64)_____complexity.

Ultimately, astronomy is a humbling discipline. It compels human beings to reconsider their assumptions and to recognise that certainty is often temporary. Each new observation extends the horizon of understanding and invites a deeper appreciation of the universe's unfolding (65)_____.

Solutions :-

SET - 1

Sol.1.(b) paradigmatic

'Paradigmatic' means representing the fundamental change in the way something is understood. The given passage states that this transformation signals not mere urban evolution but a paradigmatic shift in how collectivity is imagined. Hence, 'paradigmatic' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.2.(c) privatized

'Privatized' means turned from a public or communal space into one controlled by private or commercial interests. The given passage states that what was once civic has become privatized. Hence, 'privatized' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.3.(a) regulated

'Regulated' means controlled or directed through hidden systems or mechanisms such as surveillance or design. The given passage states that visitors believe they roam freely, yet their paths are regulated by unseen architectures of control—cameras, sensors, and behavioral scripts. Hence, 'regulated' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.4.(d) laboratory

'Laboratory' means a space for testing new ideas, expressions, or forms of civic engagement. The given passage states that to reclaim its publicness is to reimagine the plaza not as marketplace, but as laboratory for dissent, dialogue, and encounter. Hence, 'laboratory' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.5.(d) exclusion

'Exclusion' means the condition of being denied access or participation in shared public spaces. The given passage talks about the ethical function to host difference without domination and movement without exclusion. Hence, 'exclusion' is the most appropriate answer.

SET - 2

Sol.6.(b) continuity

'Continuity' means the state of being continuous or unbroken over time. The given passage states that overgrown lots, cracked pavements, and neglected waterways encode resilience, signaling not mere neglect but a continuity in ecological persistence. Hence, 'continuity' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.7.(c) trivialization

'Trivialization' means treating something meaningful as insignificant or superficial. The given passage states that to present urban wilderness as merely picturesque is to engage in epistemic trivialization, turning survival and resilience into superficial display. Hence, 'trivialization' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.8.(a) attunement

'Attunement' means a heightened awareness or sensitivity to something. The given passage states that to perceive urban wilderness critically is to cultivate attunement, an attentiveness to life that thrives beyond human calculation. Hence, 'attunement' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.9.(d) syntactic

'Syntactic' means relating to the arrangement of elements in a structured system. The given passage states that wilderness persists as a syntactic grammar inscribed upon urban peripheries, indicating an underlying structured articulation of ecological patterns. Hence, 'syntactic' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.10.(b) testimony

'Testimony' means evidence or proof of existence or occurrence. The given passage states that the city's wilds insist on recognition not as absence, but as ecological testimony, bearing witness to life that persists beyond human control. Hence, 'testimony' is the most appropriate answer.

SET - 3

Sol.11.(a) performance

'Performance' means the act of carrying out or enacting something. The given passage states that identity is not a pre-existing entity but is continuously constructed through language, social interactions, and cultural narratives. Hence, 'performance' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.12.(c) precarious

'Precarious' means unstable, uncertain, or subject to change. The given passage states that identity is fluid, fragmented, and often contradictory, rather than unified and coherent. Hence, 'precarious' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.13.(d) reify

'Reify' means to treat an abstract concept as something concrete or fixed. The given passage states that attempting to establish a single, fixed identity is futile and ignores the multiplicity of our subject positions. Hence, 'reify' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.14.(c) contingency

'Contingency' means dependence on circumstances or conditions; something that is not fixed or certain. The given passage states that to truly understand the self is to embrace its multiplicity and situational nature. Hence, 'contingency' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.15.(d) reorients

'Reorients' means to change the focus or direction of understanding. The given passage states that this understanding shifts the goal of self-discovery from finding a fixed answer to engaging in a lifelong question. Hence, 'reorients' is the most appropriate answer.

SET - 4

Sol.16.(c) commodification

'Commodification' means the process of turning something into a marketable commodity. The given passage states that creativity in the digital age is transformed into a form of marketable output governed by algorithms and engagement metrics. Hence, 'commodification' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.17.(b) homogenizing

'Homogenizing' means making things uniform or similar. The given passage states that the so-called "disruption" in the digital age actually compels artists to conform to standardized entrepreneurial norms rather than expressing unique vision. Hence, 'homogenizing' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.18.(c) conflates

'Conflates' means to combine two things as if they were the same. The given passage states that engagement metrics equate genuine human connection with quantifiable interaction, blurring the distinction between authentic connection and measurable data. Hence, 'conflates' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.19.(d) performed

'Performed' means the act of carrying out or enacting something. The given passage states that vulnerability is not genuinely shared but is staged and packaged for public consumption, neutralizing its political edge. Hence, 'performed' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.20.(c) opposition

'Opposition' means being in contrast or conflict with something. The given passage states that reclaiming art requires a return to messy, unquantifiable creative work, which is in direct contrast to the smooth, metric-driven production of content. Hence, 'opposition' is the most appropriate answer.

SET - 5

Sol.21.(b) elides

'Elides' means to omit or gloss over something. The given passage states that official history often elides inconvenient truths and dissenting voices to create a narrative of national unity. Hence, 'elides' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.22.(c) embodiment

'Embodiment' means a tangible or visible form of an idea, quality, or feeling. The given passage states that official history is given a physical embodiment in monuments, memorials, and state-sponsored ceremonies. Hence, 'embodiment' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.23.(d) messy

'Messy' means complicated, disorderly, or not straightforward. The given passage states that the curated heroic timeline often papers over the messy fractures of conflict, exploitation, and internal dissent. Hence, 'messy' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.24.(a) excavated

'Excavated' means to uncover or bring to light something that is hidden. The given passage states that silenced narratives must be actively excavated and brought into the mainstream discourse for a more honest reckoning with the past. Hence, 'excavated' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.25.(c) pageantry

'Pageantry' means a showy or ceremonial display. The given passage states that any official gesture of remembrance risks becoming a hollow act of pageantry, designed to manage public perception rather than to achieve genuine justice. Hence, 'pageantry' is the most appropriate answer.

SET - 6

Sol.26.(c) fabricates

In the passage, 'fabricates' means to construct an illusion of continuity. The given passage states that what seems factual often mirrors power itself—an inscription that fabricates continuity where disruption once existed. Hence, 'fabricates' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.27.(c) constructed

'Constructed' means built or formed. The given passage states that meaning too is not found but constructed. Hence, 'constructed' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.28.(a) residue

In the passage, 'residue' means traces or fragments of ideas, memories or meanings. The given passage states that what we inherit, then, is not certainty but residue. Hence, 'residue' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.29.(b) resonate

In the given passage, 'resonate' is used metaphorically to mean that the past continues to echo or influence the present. Hence, 'resonate' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.30.(d) possibility

The given passage states that in that pause between knowing and not knowing, history becomes not a record of what was, but a possibility of what might still be. Hence, 'possibility' is the most appropriate answer.

SET - 7

Sol.31.(b) hierarchy

'Hierarchy' means a system in which people or things are ranked one above the other, creating levels of authority or power. The given passage states that digital platforms and governance structures reinforce asymmetries in civic participation, where access does not equate to agency. Hence, 'hierarchy' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.32.(a) biases

'Biases' means a tendency or inclination that unfairly favors certain outcomes or perspectives. The given passage states that regulatory frameworks frequently treat data as a neutral commodity, obscuring its embedded biases within historical patterns of power and surveillance. Hence, 'biases' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.33.(a) performativity

'Performativity' means the act of performing or showing something symbolically rather than engaging in substantive action. The given passage states that the proliferation of dashboards, rankings, and metrics cultivates an ethos where symbolic gestures of openness replace genuine structural reform. Hence, 'performativity' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.34.(a) gatekeeping

'Gatekeeping' means controlling or limiting access to information, resources, or opportunities. The given passage states that civil society actors are invited into policy consultations, yet their contributions are filtered through bureaucratic gatekeeping, ensuring that institutional prerogatives remain unchallenged. Hence, 'gatekeeping' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.35.(a) facade

'Facade' means an outward appearance that is attractive or impressive but conceals a less pleasant reality. The given passage states that without interrogating the ontologies shaping digital governance, the promise of participatory innovation risks becoming mere facade, impressive in design but hollow in impact. Hence, 'facade' is the most appropriate answer.

SET - 8

Sol.36.(b) decolonize

'Decolonize' means to free from the dominance or influence of colonial or oppressive systems of thought. The given passage states that engaging in epistemic insurgency involves challenging the archive of thought that has long dictated who can speak, know, and be known. Hence, 'decolonize' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.37.(a) excavation

'Excavation' means the act of uncovering or bringing to light something hidden or buried. The given passage states that the scholar's task is to expose how the grammar of universality is built upon exclusion and erasure, which involves uncovering the underlying structure of thought. Hence, 'excavation' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.38.(a) abrogation

'Abrogation' means the act of abolishing or doing away with something formally or officially. The given passage states that liberation cannot arise from the accumulation of knowledge but from its strategic rejection of epistemic norms that domesticate difference. Hence, 'abrogation' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.39.(a) vulnerability

'Vulnerability' means the quality of being open to uncertainty or the possibility of being affected. The given passage states that true liberation involves imagining a politics of knowing that does not rely on mastery but on an ethics that acknowledges the unknowable as part of being human. Hence, 'vulnerability' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.40.(b) recursion

'Recursion' means the process of returning or repeating in a cyclical manner. The given passage states that the future of theory lies not in progress but in a recursive undoing of thought's imperial trajectory, suggesting a continual revisiting and reworking of established ideas. Hence, 'recursion' is the most appropriate answer.

SET - 9

Sol.41.(c) integrate

The given sentence is an example of zero conditional sentence and 'If/when + simple present ... simple present' is the correct grammatical structure for it. The first form of the verb, (V₁) is used with the plural subject('individuals') in simple present tense. Hence, 'integrate(V₁)' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.42.(d) revise

'Revise' means to examine and make corrections. The given passage states that this is why resilient thinkers view setbacks as opportunities to revise their methods rather than abandon them. Hence, 'revise' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.43.(a) challenge

'Challenge' means to test someone's ability or determination. The given passage states that such dialogue can challenge rigid thinking patterns and open pathways to original solutions. Hence, 'challenge' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.44.(b) rudimentary

'Rudimentary' means basic or undeveloped. The given passage states that without structure, even the most promising concept risks becoming rudimentary and losing its potential impact. Hence, 'rudimentary' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.45.(b) a repeated process

'Iteration' means the process of repeating a set of steps or instructions to achieve a goal. Hence, 'a repeated process' is the most appropriate answer.

SET - 10

Sol.46.(a) steer

The verb 'help' is followed by an infinitive. Infinitive is the first form(V₁) of the verb used with 'to', sometimes without 'to'. Hence, 'steer(V₁)' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.47.(b) balance and composure

'Poised' means being balanced and composed. Hence, option (b) is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.48.(a) dissolve

We generally use the first form of the verb with modals (can, could, may, might, will, shall, etc.). Hence, 'dissolve(V₁)' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.49.(c) mental strength and courage

'Fortitude' in the above passage means mental strength and courage. Hence, option (c) is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.50.(b) nourish

The given passage is stating a general truth about discipline and repeated choices. However, we generally use simple present tense to indicate a general truth. 'Choices' is a plural noun that will take 'nourish' as a plural verb. Hence, 'nourish' is the most appropriate answer.

SET - 11

Sol.51.(c) cultivated

'Cultivated' means to acquire or develop a quality or skill. The given passage states that it is cultivated through deliberate pauses, through the willingness to step back from constant stimulation. Hence, 'cultivated' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.52.(d) interrupted

'Interrupted' means to break the continuity of a thought or an action. The given passage states that individuals must learn to create spaces free from interruption, spaces in which thought can wander without being instantly interrupted. Hence, 'interrupted' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.53.(a) discipline

'Discipline' means the ability to make yourself do something, even if it is difficult, so that you can achieve a goal. The given passage states that focus strengthens when we practise returning again and again to the task at hand, where each return becomes a silent act of discipline. Hence, 'discipline' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.54.(d) noticing

'Noticing' means to observe or to become aware of something. The given passage states that to reclaim our capacity for deep noticing, we must replace the habit of constant reaction with the habit of noticing. Hence, 'noticing' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.55.(c) overshadow

'Overshadow' means to appear more important. The given passage states that like any meaningful relationship, it flourishes when we protect it from the noise that seeks to overshadow it. Hence, 'overshadow' is the most appropriate answer.

SET - 12Sol.56.(b) manufactured

'Manufactured' means produced or created deliberately. The given passage states that such confidence cannot be manufactured through declarations alone. Hence, 'manufactured' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.57.(b) inhibit

'Inhibit' means restrain, slow down, or prevent progress. The given passage states that when expectations turn pessimistic, caution may inhibit growth long before official indicators reflect the shift. Hence, 'inhibit' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.58.(a) strengthens

'Strengthens' means makes something stronger. The given passage states that "clarity and steady execution help create a sense of direction that strengthens economic resilience. Hence, 'strengthens' is the most appropriate because clarity and consistency reinforce resilience.

Sol.59.(a) limiting

'Limiting' means restricting or reducing the effectiveness or capacity of something. The given passage states that without careful balance, economies risk becoming reactive, thereby limiting their capacity to adapt to changing global circumstances. Hence, 'limiting' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.60.(c) growth

'Growth' means progress, development, or positive expansion. The given passage states that "societies can face uncertainty with greater confidence, transforming temporary disruptions into opportunities for renewed growth. Hence, 'growth' is the most appropriate answer.

SET - 13Sol.61.(b) approached

'Approached' means dealing with something in a considered

manner. The given passage states that knowledge of the universe advances when observations are approached with disciplined curiosity rather than hurried assumptions. Hence, 'approached' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.62.(b) undermine

'Undermine' means to weaken or damage something gradually or subtly. The given passage states that such discoveries emerge slowly, shaped by measurements so delicate that even minor errors can undermine an entire model. Hence, 'undermine' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.63.(a) overlooked

'Overlooked' means failed to notice. The given passage states that this method demonstrates how scientific insight often comes from interpreting signals that are easily overlooked without careful study. Hence, 'overlooked' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.64.(c) nurture

'Nurture' means to support or encourage the growth and development of something. The given passage states that their discovery urges researchers to refine their techniques and confront the possibility that familiar conditions may not be the only environments that nurture complexity. Hence, 'nurture' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.65.(c) narrative

'Narrative' means a connected account or story describing events or ideas. The given passage states that each new observation extends the horizon of understanding and invites a deeper appreciation of the universe's unfolding narrative. Hence, 'narrative' is the most appropriate answer.

SET-16.Q.(76 - 80)

The truth of the self-conscious individual lies not in its immediate certainty, but in the dialectical movement of its becoming. Consciousness, in its pursuit of knowledge, initially assumes that its object is something external and independent. Yet, through the labour of experience, it discovers that this object is not truly separate but _____ (76) by consciousness itself.

The apparent duality of subject and object is thus sublated in the dialectic, revealing that knowledge is not the passive reception of an external truth but an active process in which consciousness shapes and _____ (77) its own reality.

This movement unfolds through a series of contradictions, in which each stage of consciousness, believing itself to have attained certainty, encounters its own inadequacy. The master-slave dialectic exemplifies this: self-consciousness seeks recognition from another, yet in asserting its dominance over the other, it paradoxically _____ (78) its own freedom.

The master, in reducing the slave to a mere instrument, deprives himself of a fully realized recognition. Meanwhile, the slave, through labour and self-transformation, attains a deeper awareness of autonomy, demonstrating that freedom is not given but achieved through negation and _____ (79). Spirit (Geist) emerges as the reconciliation of these conflicts—not a static substance but a dynamic process of self-realization. Spirit unfolds historically, manifesting itself (80) _____ in institutions, culture, and philosophy, gradually moving toward absolute knowing. This historical progression is not linear but dialectical, driven by the negation of old forms and the emergence of new ones.

Solutions :-SET - 14*Sol.66.(b) rigorous

'Rigorous' means extremely thorough and careful. The given passage states that modern ethical debates tend to concern the conflict between deontological and consequentialist approaches, each providing a rigorous methodology. Hence, 'rigorous' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.67.(b) actions

The phrase 'moral actions' means actions that are guided by ethical principles and values. The given passage states that deontology requires respect for moral actions irrespective of the result. Hence, 'actions' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.68.(b) outcomes

'Outcomes' means consequences of actions. The given passage states that consequentialism judges on the basis of net outcomes. Hence, 'outcomes' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.69.(b) immoral

'Immoral' means not considered good or honest by most people. The given passage states that objections against pure consequentialism suggest it will allow immoral actions if these bring about maximum overall welfare. Hence, 'immoral' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.70.(b) well-balanced

In the given passage, "well-balanced hybrid theories" means theories that fairly combine the strict duties of deontology with the outcome-based approach of consequentialism. Hence, 'well-balanced' is the most appropriate answer.

SET - 15Sol.71.(b) ephemeral

'Ephemeral' means lasting for a very short time. The given passage states that researchers in quantum computing face the twin difficulties of ephemeral qubit coherence. Hence, 'ephemeral' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.72.(b) prohibitive

'Prohibitive' means so high as to prevent something from happening or succeeding. According to the given passage, the error rates are very high in quantum computing. Hence, 'prohibitive' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.73.(b) elusive

'Elusive' means difficult to achieve. The given passage states that maintaining coherence beyond microseconds is difficult to achieve due to environmental decoherence. Hence, 'elusive' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.74.(b) sophisticated

'Sophisticated' means a machine or equipment developed to a higher degree of complexity. The given passage states that scaling up the number of qubits requires sophisticated control electronics that themselves introduce noise. Hence, 'sophisticated' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.75.(b) quantum-error-correcting

The given passage talks about some kind of techniques such as surface codes and topological qubits to overcome the hurdles. Option (b) talks about correcting quantum errors, that is resolving the difficulties faced in quantum computing. Hence, 'quantum-error-correcting' is the most appropriate answer.

SET - 16

Sol.76.(b) Mediated

The sentence is in the passive voice ("is ... by"), so the past participle "mediated" correctly expresses that the object is shaped or determined by consciousness. Hence, "Mediated" is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.77.(a) Transforms

The given passage emphasizes that consciousness does not just receive knowledge passively but actively shapes and transforms reality through its engagement with the object. Hence, "Transforms" is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.78.(a) undermines

The given passage describes a general truth about the master-slave dialectic. Present tense "undermines" correctly expresses this ongoing, paradoxical effect. Hence, "undermines" is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.79.(c) Detachment

The given passage describes freedom as something achieved through the process of negation and self-transformation. "Detachment" captures the idea of renouncing attachment to limitations, thereby attaining autonomy. Hence, "Detachment" is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.80.(c) Reflexive pronoun

Reflexive pronouns refer back to the subject of the sentence. They are used when the object of a verb is the same as its subject. In this sentence, "Spirit" is the subject, and "manifesting itself" means Spirit is manifesting itself. So, "itself" refers back to "Spirit."

SET - 17

Sol.81.(d) fulfilled

'Fulfilled' means feeling happiness and satisfaction. The given passage states that some are drawn to high-paying jobs, while others feel more fulfilled in fields that align with their personal values. Hence, 'fulfilled' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.82.(b) burnout

'Burnout' means a feeling of not being able to work anymore. The given passage states that ignoring one's true interests can lead to long-term burnout. Hence, 'burnout' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.83.(c) planning

The given passage states that such a path requires careful planning. Hence, 'planning' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.84.(c) stability

'Job stability' means having a steady and reliable employment over a long period. The given passage states that it's important to evaluate not just income, but also growth, purpose, and job stability. Hence, 'stability' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.85.(c) rewarding

'Rewarding' means providing satisfaction. The given passage states that the goal is not just to survive, but to build a life that is both secure and rewarding. Hence, 'rewarding' is the most appropriate answer.

SET - 18

Sol.86.(d) drastically

'Drastically' means to a great or significant extent. The passage talks about major changes in contemporary life due to digital technology. Hence, 'drastically' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.87.(d) invariably 'Invariably' means always or without exception. The passage indicates that technologies are consistently transforming industries and societies. Hence, 'invariably' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.88.(d) disruption

'Disruption' means a disturbance or problem that interrupts an ongoing process. The passage mentions that the rapid pace of technological change leaves workers uncertain about their future jobs. Hence, 'disruption' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.89.(d) adaptable

'Adaptable' means able to adjust to new conditions or changes. The passage suggests that people need to adjust to technological disruption by continuously updating their skills. Hence, 'adaptable' is the most appropriate answer.

Sol.90.(d) competencies

'Competencies' means skills, knowledge, and abilities needed to perform effectively. The passage emphasizes that to stay competitive amid technological disruption, people must continuously update their skills. Hence, 'competencies' is the most appropriate answer.

SET - 19

Sol.91.(a) domain

'Domain' means an area of expertise or control. The passage states that AI now makes decisions that were once the "domain of human judgment," indicating tasks previously reserved for humans. Hence, 'domain' is the most appropriate answer.

The water cycle, also known as the hydrological cycle, is a continuous process that circulates water throughout the Earth's systems. It involves the movement of water between the (548)_____, the water bodies and the land. The cycle consists of several key stages, each playing a crucial role in maintaining Earth's water balance. At the heart of the water cycle is the process of (549)_____. This is where water from oceans, lakes and rivers is heated by the sun and turns into water vapour. This water vapour then rises into the atmosphere, where it cools and condenses to form clouds. When these clouds become heavy enough, they release their moisture through (550)_____, which can fall as rain or other forms of precipitation.

When precipitation falls onto the land, it can take different paths. Some of it may evaporate back into the air, while some may be taken up by plants and released back into the atmosphere through a process called (551)_____. The rest of the water may flow over the land's surface, gathering in streams and rivers that eventually lead back to the oceans, completing the cycle.

The water cycle is essential for maintaining Earth's ecosystems and supporting life. It helps distribute fresh water to various regions, replenishes water sources, and plays a role in regulating (552)_____ temperatures. Understanding the water cycle is crucial for addressing water scarcity and managing natural resources effectively.
